Summer Fun is Back in New York City

Some of the most exciting places to visit in NYC are back in business this summer—and it's time for you to enjoy and engage in the summer fun! When the COVID-19 pandemic was still rising and emerging throughout the world in the summer of 2020, many NYC tours, attractions, and events resorted to a more virtual summer experience from the city's most popular public areas, such as parks, museums, and landmarks.

In the middle of 2021, many public areas and facilities were slowly back up and running while maintaining certain limitations and restrictions for visitors. Thanks to the growing impact from the progress and implementation of securing people's health and safety, these effortless outcomes can now allow people in NYC to safely get back on board to experience a variety of summer events with families and friends—as long as health and safety protocols continue to be practiced and acknowledged.

Be safe and enjoy your summer!
